Regulatory Update

June 2012

Serbia:

The Republic Agency for Electronic Communications (RATEL) have published a new law, Decision of the Ministry of Culture, Media and Information Society No. 119-01-00168/2011-06 concerning the rules on radio and telecommunication equipment which has taken immediate effect from 1st June 2012.

Due to the late decision taken by the Ministry of Culture, Media and Information Society, RATEL have not been able to disclose these details sooner.

Foreign manufacturers or companies can no longer directly apply for RATEL certification, a local representative must act on the applicant's behalf in order to obtain Type Approval of radio devices.

If the Manufacturer or Manufacturer's Representative are not registered in the territory of the Republic of Serbia, the request for a Certificate of Conformity must be submitted by the local importer.

Until such time as the new conformity procedures are published, certification for Serbian Approvals will not be processed by RATEL.
