Regulatory Update

15th January 2016

Tanzania – Type Approval now Mandatory for Low Power Devices under 100mW

It has recently been confirmed by the Tanzanian Communications Regulatory Authority (TCRA), that Type Approval is now mandatory for radio communication equipment operating in ISM frequency bands and below 100mW. Previously, such devices were exempt from Approval.

Moving forward, all new LPDs operating under 100mW must be Type Approved.

For LPDs already being commercialised and imported into Tanzania, and for which already have notification letters from the TCRA, no further action is needed. In all other cases, Type Approval must now be sought.

TCRA have confirmed that the Type Approval process, price and lead time will remain the same, however this information will be reconfirmed upon release of the amended Type Approval guidelines. PCS will keep customers aware of any further changes.
